Survey Background

Increasing GDP has opened up opportunities for low and middle-resource countries to build capacity in critical care for children. However, there is a need for expertise to enable rational use of resources and to enable best outcomes.

The WFPICCS Global Health Initiative (GHI) intends to mobilize its membership to assist colleagues in low and middle-resource countries in these endeavors.

As a pre-requisite to developing partnerships, it is important to understand what collaborations are already in place with colleagues from low-and-middle resource countries, what resources are available; what challenges exist and how the Global Health Initiative could collaborate to address some of these issues.

We may contact you for follow-up information. Please contact Dr. Ndidi Musa, Seattle Children's Hospital at +1 (206) 987-2140 if you have any questions or comments regarding this survey.
